VOTERS TO EXPRESS THEIR SENTIMENT ON COMMISSION FORM OF GOVERNMENT

SEPARATE BALLOTS WILL BE PROVIDED TO DETERMINE IF CHANGE IS DESIRED HERE

W. H. PARKER IS APPOINTED NIGHT WATCHMAN AND SIDE-WALKS WILL BE EXTENDED AS DESIRED.

The voters of Daytona will be given an opportunity at the special election to be held in this city next month to express their sentiments as to whether the city should be governed by a commission form of government, or remain as it is at the present time. This expression of sentiment will be given on a small, separate ballot to be cast by each voter at the election, and will be nothing more than the sentiment on the subject.

This is the result of an action taken by the city council at the regular meeting last night and is following out, in a measure, a request made by the Daytona board of trade recently.

The action taken by the board of trade was the appointment of C. M. Bingham as a special committee to confer with the council and request that body to formulate some sort of definite plan for a commission form of government and submit it to the people for an expression of sentiment at the coming special election. The proposition was submitted to the council some time ago, but no action was taken by the aldermen until the motion passed at the meeting last night to prepare a special ballot for use at the election, saying whether or not the voters wish the form of government changed.

The council has not followed out the request of the board of trade in formulating any kind of a plan for the commission government, leaving this matter to be settled by the voters in case a majority of them are in favor of the change. If this change is desired, a special act of the state legislature will probably be necessary to order the change in the city charter.

In the voting on sentiment in the coming special election the separate, special ballots will be deposited in a separate ballot box and handled separately from the ballots on charter changes.

To Extend Sidewalks—

That the property owners on Second avenue, west from Ridgewood to the industrial school, will be given an opportunity to build sidewalks is the result of a notice given by Alderman Smith last night that at the next regular meeting of the council he will introduce an ordinance granting this privilege. The property owners have petitioned for the sidewalks on both sides of the

WHAT LISZT DID FOR MUSIC

His Compelling Personality, Genius and Inspiration Made Possible the Later Wagner.

But he introduced into the musty academic atmosphere of musical Europe a strong, fresh breeze from the Hungarian puzta; this wandering piano player of Hungarian-Austrian blood, a genuine cosmopolite, taught music a new charm, the charm of the unexpected, of the improvised. The freedom of Beethoven in his later works and of Chopin in all his music became the principal factor in the style of Liszt. Music must have the shape of an improvisation. In the Hungarian rhapsodies, the majority of which begin in a mosque and always end in a tavern, are the extremes of his system. His orchestral and vocal works, the two symphonies, the masses and oratorios and symphonic poems are full of dignity, poetic feeling, religious spirit, and a largeness of accent and manner. Yet the gypsy glance and gypsy voice lurk behind many a plous or pompous bar. Apart from his invention of a new form—or rather the condensation and revival of an old one—the symphonic poem—Liszt's greatest contribution to art is the wild, truant, rhapsodic extempore element he infused into modern music; nature in her most reckless, untrammelled moods he interpreted with fidelity. But the drummers in the line of moral gasoline who controlled criticism in Germany refused to see Liszt except as an ex-piano virtuoso with the morals of a fly and a perverter of art. Even the piquant triangle in his piano concerto was suspected as possibly suggesting the usual situation of French comedy.

The Liszt-Wagner question no longer presents any difficulties to the fair-minded. It is a simple one, for men still living know that Wagner, to reach his musical apogee, to reach his public, had to lean heavily on the musical genius and individual inspiration of Liszt. The later Wagner would not have existed—as we now know him—without first traversing the garden of Liszt. This is not a theory but a fact.—From Franz Liszt—The Real and Legendary," by James Huneker, in Scribner's.

Her Artistic Appetite.

"The young lady seems rather fragile," remarked the observant man. "Yes," replied Miss Cayenne; "she has one of those artistic appetites. She doesn't care what kind of patent food is in the box so long as the picture on the label is pretty."

SAW ONLY SIGNS OF BADNESS

Character-Reading Professor Discovers the Criminal Type but Overlooked the White Flower.

The professor who reads character from physiognomy pointed to the boy opposite. He belonged to the criminal type, said the professor. Look at his eyes, his ears, his cheek bones, his mouth—criminal, every one of them.

The boy sat very still. All about him were other boys swinging ball bats, and cuffing each other's ears, but that, the professor said, was only the natural overflow of animal spirits; the quiet boy was too thoroughly steeped in criminality to have any animal spirits. Just as the professor's companion was beginning to wonder if it was safe to ride in the same car with the youthful degenerate the boy reached down into his pocket and brought forth a white flower. It was a common field flower, a cluster of tiny white blossoms topping a slender stalk. The boy seemed very fond of it. He twirled the stalk, he stroked the leaves and petals, and every touch was soft and tender. But the professor had no eyes for those gentle fingers, he was intent on the unmistakable signs of inherited depravity.

"A bad one, he is, all right," said the professor with a solemn shake of the head.

But the other person looked at the flower again. A bad one, was he? Maybe; but the other person had doubts.

Drilling With Diamonds.

A diamond bit for rock drilling is quite an expensive article. Its value, however, will undergo fluctuations, dependent upon the price of the diamonds. Perhaps $800 is a fair value for a bit. The diamond used is exceedingly hard—harder than those usually used as jewelry. Their carat price is considerable, averaging, say, $60 a carat. The diamonds used will weigh from one to two carats, so that eight have a value ranging from $480 to $960, on the average. The loss of a bit means so many diamonds gone and may lead to difficulty with the hole. The diamond is not tough, but brittle. It will withstand heavy pressure if applied evenly and without shock. It can readily be seen that drilling through seamy rock may become quite unfavorable. If there is much quartz present the abrasion may become excessive. Under ordinary conditions, however, the wear on the diamonds, while considerable, is by no means prohibitive.—Cassier's Magazine.

Doubting Tom.

"Young men believe in nothing nowadays," says Mrs. Ramsbotham, with a deep sigh. "Why, there's my nephew, Tom, who was brought up as a Christian, and now he's an acrostatic."

DON'T TELL OF THEIR RICHES

Great Britain Has Many Millionaires Who Keep Quiet About Their Great Wealth.

"While people in Europe marvel at the big incomes of our American magnates," said Arthur Albert Brooks, late of London, who has come to this side for permanent residence, "it must be admitted that there are many men in Great Britain who are blessed with large incomes and are careful to make no reference to the fact that the newspapers. Possibly England has as many millionaires to the population as this country, but it would be disputed offand by any one who had not taken the pains to look up the figures.

"They are reaching out in England for a higher tax on incomes, and it was the operation of this new law that brought forth the information. In the United Kingdom there are more than 19,000 persons with an income of more than $50,000 a year. They average $33,000 a year each. There are 20 men in commercial pursuits who have an income each of more than $250,000.
"I am told that you can find 20 men in one business block down town in New York city with that income, and anxious to double it. Possibly in some of your industrial towns you have groups of millionaires who will laugh at our claims in England of large incomes. But our average to the population will keep up well.

"The aggregate gross income of the inhabitants of the United Kingdom is more than $5,000,000,000, and the average to each inhabitant will compare favorably with the annual incomes of citizens on this side of the water."

Judicial Advice.

"I hope you won't be hard on me, judge," he said. "You see, I was under the influence of liquor when I done it."

"You seem to have been under the influence of something equally bad when you studied grammar. During the spare moments that you are going to have, permit yourself to indulge in judicious study of the construction of simple sentences. Here is one to begin with—sixty days."

Dug His Own Grave.

ployed at Fulham cemetery as a gravedigger, was buried the other day in a grave which he dug several days ago before he went to the hospital, where he died.

KILLING OFF THE MOSQUITO

Much Has Been Done With Crude Petroleum, and the Fish Experiment Works Well.

According to those who have given much time to the question of destroying the mosquito, considerable progress has been made in that direction in the last few years. Many of the breeding places have been wiped out in New Jersey and Staten Island, but unfortunately enough still remain to give the insects plenty of chance to multiply. Crude petroleum has been used with good effect in places where the drainage is bad, but this, of course, can bring only a temporary cessation of breeding.

The fish experiment is said to have been used successfully in the Barbados. All the swamps and ponds were stocked some years ago with a species of fish that feed on the larvae of the mosquito. These fishes multiply rapidly and thrive in the West Indian waters. In a short time there were millions of them in the swamps and ponds, and it was observed that mosquitoes were comparatively scarce in the islands.

The success of this experiment led to the stocking of standing waters in Jamaica a year or two ago, and the health authorities of that island report a considerable diminution of fever as a result of the destruction of the mosquito larvae.

Habits of Hedgehog.

The hedgehog passes the winter in sleep, with circulation almost suspended and body fibres banked. It carries a reserve of glycogen and fat, however, and recent investigations have shown that soon after awakening it warms up by a rapid burning of glycogen. This carbohydrate proves to be the chief fuel, the fat being quite unimportant. The animal may be awake at a low temperature, for the awakening is distinct from the warming up, and whether the latter is voluntary or an automatic process is not yet determined.

Awkward.

This is how "salvation" was being brought about. A captain in the "Army," noted for his erudition and enthusiasm, said: "If you look to the hens they never so much as take a drink of water without raising their bills in token of gratitude. Oh, that we were all hens!" To which there was an unanimous response of "Amen!"

News from Fair Florida Briefly Told

William Jennings Bryan has been made an active member of the Miami board of trade.

Key West is soon to have an auto fire truck, the order for one having been placed.

Dr. R. E. Tiller, of Chipley, killed a one-year old pig a few days ago that netted 331 pounds of meat.

St. Augustine is making great preparations for the chautauqua to be held interesting program is being arranged.

Clay county is now building a hard-surfaced road from Green Cove Springs to Orange Park, which will connect with the Duval county brick road, which runs through Ortega.

The St. Petersburg waterworks is to be improved by the addition of a duplicate system of machinery. When these improvements are added the water supply will be in excellent condition.

The managers of the Orange county fair association have made contracts with Aviator Bonny to make daily flights in his Wright biplane during each day of the fair which will be held in Orlando in February.

A new 100-ton ferry boat is now being constructed for use in the service between Jacksonville and the south side of the river. The boat will have a cabin for passengers and space to accommodate 14 automobiles or other vehicles.

The Fort Lauderdale Herald says that early in January that place will offer to the public one of the finest little hotels on the East Coast. The new hostelry will be known as the Gilbert House.

The St. Petersburg band is going to give a series of Sunday concerts during the winter season, at the tended.

A large new warehouse is to be erected at Ocala by Messrs. Jenkins & Williams. The new building will be of fire-proof construction and will be used for the storage of building material and supplies of every kind.
Work on this structure will commence at an early date.

Plans and specifications for a new building to be erected on the square in Ocala, have been made and the work will be commenced early next year. The new building will be constructed of brick and stone and will add a great deal to the looks of the Brick City.

Work is progressing nicely on the new crane mill which is being erected at Crystal River. This mill will be very much larger and better than the one which was destroyed by fire some time ago. Electric power will run all the machinery and modern labor-saving contrivances will be used.

Lynn Haven's first church has just been completed and the people of that little town are to be congratulated on the fine edifice. The style of the structure is Gothic, it is a handsome building and large enough to do for the future as well as the present.

Adrian O'Connell gave notice that at the next meeting he will move for an ordinance extending the sidewalk abutment along the east side of Ridgeland street from the present south extremity of the walk south to the city limits. There is at the request of C. W. Bonifield, who wishes to extend the sidewalk along the property he recently purchased in the south part of the city.

The requests of Capt. Ralph H. Hays and H. A. Townsend for leave improvements, which were granted at the last meeting of the council, have been held up again because of the old ordinance which requires that these requests be granted by the board before action can be taken by the council.

The request of H. A. Lindholm was to build a dock and concrete apron, with open sides, in front of his property on North Beach street.

At the meeting Mayor again requested that the request be granted by Dept. L. H. Hineswood for permission to build a wharfe on the dock at the head of Valdez street, and this request was held up for publication until the others.

Porter Is Nighr Wayman—

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—One tendency in what appears to be a more general opinion, the disagreement of Judge Robert W. Taft, does not indicate that the publicity of the country is generally wrong. Each case has been taken to ground, the selection of those who accept the judicial branch, that there is some cause to fear the spread of the doctrine.

The activities of the United States government for the apprehension of justice of the supreme court of the United States to the president of the United States, by and with the consent of the Senate. The President of the Supreme Court, who is to be elected every Congress, shall be placed in the company of other judges and subsequent cases, provided that Congress shall have power to make and establish laws from time to time, such federal courts as shall appear necessary. And every Congress shall be empowered to elect one or more members of the Supreme Court for the purpose of doing so.

who are elected by the people, who are presidential representatives, these constitutions mean, in fact, the refusal of the United States system. This provides the necessary check on the economic choices of Japan. It is the preservation that the judgment of the people is a moral responsibility, that we have full consciousness, in Japan, to share the writing of the document by a free people of persons, not changing the desire of the state. It is up to the elected leadership in the government that the people are accountable only to themselves that will protect a new vision that we have will be entirely accountable to them. street from Ridgewood through Midway to the industrial school.

Alderman Conrad gave notice that at the next meeting he will introduce an ordinance ordering the sidewalk extended along the east side of Ridgewood avenue from the present south extremity of the walk south to the city limits. This is at the request of C. W. Rowland, who wishes to extend the sidewalk along the property he recently purchased in the south part of the city.

Dock Changes Held Up—

The requests of Capt. Ralph Nutting and H. A. Intemann for dock improvements, which were presented at the last meeting of the council, have been held up again because of the city ordinance which requires that these requests be published for two weeks before action can be taken by the council.

The request of Captain Nutting is that he be permitted to build a glass-enclosed waiting room and rest station at the end of the Rambler dock, and was held up at the last meeting because the specifications were not quite complete, and with a request that Capt. Nutting obtain the consent of all property owners along Beach street between Magnolia and Volusia avenues. These requests were complied with and the request for permission to build was again presented at the meeting last night.

The request of H. A. Intemann was to build a dock and covered station, with open sides, in front of his property on North Beach street.

At the meeting Monday night a request was presented by Capt. L. E. Ellenwood for permission to build a pavilion on the dock at the foot of Volusia avenue, and this request was held up for publication with the others.

Parker Is Night Watchman—

A petition from a number of business men who have hired William H. Parker to look after their places, that Mr. Parker be empowered with police authority by the city, was granted by the council and the mayor's appointment of Mr. Parker as a member of the police force, which accompanied the petition, was confirmed by the aldermen.

Other Business Transacted—

The report of Gettes Long as city sanitary inspector was accepted and placed on file.

The street committee was authorized to have a street light placed on North Beach street between Volusia avenue and Bay street.

The finance committee was authorized to make preparations to pay the interest on the city bonds by the first of the year.

W. B. Chittenden asked for permission to build concrete stepping stones in front of two of his residence properties and the matter was referred to the street committee.

The National Tree of China.

The tung, or wood oil tree, is worthily named the national tree of China. It is stately in appearance, with smooth green bark and wide-spreading branches, affording a fine shade. It bears a fruit resembling a shellbark hickory nut, but as large as a small orange. Each nut contains three triangular seeds similar to small Brazil nuts. The oil is pressed from these seeds and the refuse is used as a fertilizer. The oil is used principally for polishing woodwork and dressing leather. Considerable quantities are exported.

The wood of the tung tree is used for making musical instruments, fine boxes and the framework of small houses. It is believed that this tree might flourish in warmer parts of the United States.—Scientific American.

JUDGES OF COUNTRY ARE NOT CORRUPT

JURISTS AS A RULE ARE SELECTED FOR CAPABILITY

IMPEACHMENT OF JUDGE ARCH- BALD DOES NOT INDICATE THE COURTS OF THE COUNTRY ARE DISHONEST.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24 — Contrary to what seems to be a very general opinion, the impeachment of Judge Robert W. Archbald does not indicate that the judiciary of the country is generally corrupt. Such care has been taken to guard the selection of those who occupy the judicial bench that there is little cause to fear the spread of the defection.

The constitution of the United States provides for the appointment of justices of the supreme court and other federal courts by the president of the United States, by and with the consent of the senate. The framers of the constitution, secure in the belief that every confidence could be placed in the congresses of their own day and subsequent ones, provided that congress should have power to ordain and establish, from time to time, such inferior courts as should appear necessary. And early congresses framed legislation to regulate the manner of choice of such administrators of law and dispensers of justice.

In some courts there preside judges who are elected by the people; others are presidential appointees, their nominations must, by law, be confirmed by the United States senate. This provides the necessary check on immoderate choices of jurists. It is the assumption that the judgment of the senate is a seal of approval, given after full consideration, is bound to insure the filling of the vacancy by a man capable of properly discharging the duties of the office.

As to the elective judgeships, it is the assumption that as the people are accountable only to themselves they will select a man whom they believe will be safely accountable to them. Both avenues of choice are covered. But as a final bulwark against unwise choice on the part of the president of one of his judicial appointees, and against unwise action on the part of the senate in confirming such choice, the constitution provides for the impeachment of federal—that is, appointed—judges, by the senate at the instance of the house of representatives, the direct representatives of the people.

So then, it will be observed, the constitution writers realized the great importance of placing men on the benches of the country who are capable of administering justice—men of nimble and adroit minds, but men of sound temperaments, and deliberate action.

Long years have intervened since these things were so ordered, and time, some contend, has twisted matters awry. In nearly every state in the union they say there may be found some judge who is incapable of performing his duties. The inefficiency, however, of such a judge never is his fault. It is patently the fault of those who put him in office.

To continue this line of argument would bring one to an inevitable discussion of the recall of judges propaganda, with its various phases of merit and demerit. It may be stated however, that though there are undoubtedly here and there corrupt or unfitted members of the judiciary the vast majority of judges are men such as the framers of the constitution had in mind when they drafted their provisions for judicial selection. However, the price of clean courts and worthy laws seems to be eternal vigilance.

A Professional Paradox.

The study of science is not necessarily all gray; it may have its rosy patches. It is said that a learned professor of Heidelberg forbade his students the repetition of a certain experiment.

"But," they protested, "it has always been successful."

"Nevertheless," he said, "its position among experiments is absolutely untenable from an intellectual point of view."

The boys stared.
"The thing may answer very well in practice," said the professor, "but it is not sound in theory."—Youth's Companion.

BUILDING A GOOD ROAD IN ST. JOHNS

JOHN ANDERSON HIGHWAY IS BEING RESURFACED

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS IN ST.
JOHNS COUNTY PUSHING THE WORK AS FAR AS DUVAL COUNTY LINE.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Dec. 24 — St.
Johns county is making steady progress on the work of surfacing the John Anderson highway between the Duval county line and St. Augustine.

Recently Chairman B. Genovar, of the board of county commissioners, accompanied by Commissioner Faver, made a tour of inspection of the highway and found that 12 cars of Augusta gravel had been placed on the road in the vicinity of Woodland, covering a distance of somewhat less than half a mile. There was one car yet to be unloaded and two other cars due to arrive, making a total of 15 cars on the first order for surfacing material.

The gravel is being put down a width of 12 feet, and at a depth of about six to eight inches. The section improved appears to be a fine piece of work and automobile drivers who passed through the section during the stay of the commissioners were very loud in their praise of the work being done by the commissioners.

It is hoped that final arrangements can be made by the commissioners, with the co-operation of the business men of St. Augustine, to continue the surfacing operations until the four miles from the present terminus of the shell road at Nine-mile crossing to the Twelve-mile swamp is completed.

FIVE ACRES ARE ENOUGH TO PROVE UP

HARDER TO PREPARE SOIL THAN ON WESTERN PRAIRIE

OLD LAW REQUIRING 20 ACRES UNDER CULTIVATION CAUSED HARDSHIP TO MANY IN STATE OF FLORIDA.

Instead of every Florida homesteader having to put 20 acres of land under cultivation before final proof can be made, as has heretofore been the case, it will be possible to prove up with much less tilled acreage, perhaps as low as five acres, according to circular recently issued by the secretary of the interior, facts concerning which have been given out by Henry S. Chubb, register of the United States land office at Gainesville.

Under the old homestead law it was necessary for a homesteader to live five years upon his claim, and put one-eighth of the whole under cultivation. This would be about 20 acres on the ordinary homestead.
When they made these provisions the framers of the homestead act had in mind the great prairies of the middle west where it would not be any more work or expense to put the whole 160 acres, in the opinion of Mr. Chubb, under cultivation than five in this soil where the trees must be cleared first, the rock grubbed out and fertilizer added. Later this act, says Mr. Chubb, was applied to government lands of all kinds, and in partial appreciation of the different conditions in which various sections of the country are found, the time limit was lowered to three years with the privilege of being absent from the claim five months each year. The last year, however, was under the amended act, to see 20 acres in cultivation.

This has been felt to be burdensome in Florida as it is almost impossible for a poor man to clear that much land. According to Mr. Chubb, it costs about $100 to clear an acre, and half that much again to get it into trees, to say nothing about the expense of continued cultivation. The law was originally passed to aid the poor man and in further considering these premises the secretary of the interior has issued his circular which allows any homesteader to make application for reduction in the number of acres required under cultivation, and if it is found that the application is just, the reduction will be granted, probably to five acres in many cases, thinks Mr.
Chubb.

Sure To Be Found.

Nana Sahib, a Man of Mystery

THE name
"Nana Sa-
hib," a half century ago,
was one of terror and loathing
all over the civilized world. Today Americans have half forgotten it.
Several million
dusky Orientals secretly or openly hail Nana Sahib
as a deliverer and a true patriot. A still larger number of white people declared him a fiend. He was the foremost figure in the Sepoy Mutiny. His terrible work ended, he apparently vanished from the face of the earth.
His name was not Nana Sahib. That was merely his title. (His name was Dhuado Punt). He was the son of a high caste Hindoo and was born about 1825. When he was a baby he was adopted by Bhajee Rou, prince of the Maharattas; and in 1851 he succeeded his adopted father as prince. Bhajee had been lord of wide estates and had received a yearly pension of $450,000 from the British government. At his death the pension was stopped and the government seized much of his land.

This angered Nana Sahib, who had hoped to inherit all of Bhajee's wealth.
He sent an agent to England to urge his rights. But all he could secure from the British was permission to hold the barren title of prince and to rule the fortress town of Bithoor, near Cawnpore.

If Nana felt resentment at this lopping off of his power he showed no outward sign of it. He came of a race that knew how to hide its feelings and to await the right moment for revenge.

So, instead of sulking in his fortress or joining in the thousand foolish, hopeless native plots that were forever stirred up against the white men, he became as "English" as he could.
He spoke the language and tried to follow the customs of the British. He married as much as he was allowed to by English society at the India garrison town. When callow English men stayed up their noses at his pretensions or sneered at him as a native, he bore all such slights patiently and redoubled his efforts to copy the ways of his white masters.
He succeeded. Every one believed he was English.

Then, in 1857, came the Sepoy Mutiny. Most of England's white regiments had been summoned away from India to the Crimean War, leaving the country chiefly garrisoned by Sepoy, or native troops. The religious fanaticism of these native soldiers was so cleverly worked upon by Nana and other secret agents that they rose in a body against the English.

Nana, when the mutiny broke out, declared himself ready to die in the defense of his British friends. They trusted him absolutely. But as soon as the uprising showed signs of success he cast aside the mask of loyalty, placed himself at the head of a Sepoy army, and proceeded to wreak horrible vengeance for his real or fancied wrongs.

He slew every white man, woman or child that fell into his hands. Then he marched against the plucky little British garrison at Cawnpore. The garrison held out as long as it could, then on Nana's promise to spare them all and to send them to a place of safety, the starving white men at length surrendered. This was on June 27, 1857. Nana ordered the garrison to march out of the city and to board a line of boats awaiting them at the river's edge. No sooner were the boats afloat than by Nana's orders the helpless occupants were fired upon. Nearly every one of them was shot or drowned. Those who reached land alive suffered the worst fate of all. The women and children had been herded separately in an enclosed space. They were now killed and their bodies thrown into a great well.

Battle after battle Nana fought with the white troops during the next few months, almost always being beaten in fair fight, but continuing to massacre any small detachments of English he could find. His wily brain and heartless cruelty made him a scourge to the British until the whole Mutiny was stamped out.

Then England wreaked fearful vengeance on her crushed foes. Native leaders were tied to the cannon's mouth and blown to pieces. Other cruelties were inflicted that could be partly excused only when one remembered that the avengers were mad with anguish over the brutal murders of their wives and children.

But, while other and lesser conspirators suffered punishment, Nana Sahib escaped. To this day no Englishman knows what became of him, whether he died years ago or is still living in luxurious safety in some Oriental land.

Rain Caused Fire.

Fire has been caused by rain at Ennis (Ireland) railway station. A West Clare railway wagon containing some unslaked lime and other goods was completely destroyed, and the flames spread to other wagons, doing considerable damage.

POLITENESS OUT OF PLACE

Old Lawyer Did Not Want His Client to Think He Could Get Free Advice.

Politeness is politeness, but business is just business. One of the clerks of the supreme court tried to combine the two the other day, but hereafter he is going to attend strictly to business. He was anxious to destroy the common belief of many persons who visit the New York county courthouse that little courtesy is shown by the attaches to those seeking information. The clerk was standing in the corridor on the second floor when two men came along, one of them gray haired. The younger one asked the elder the way out of the building. The clerk heard the query and at once told the questioner several ways he could get out. The older man turned on the clerk with the injunction to mind his own business, adding that he had been in the building before the clerk was born and could himself answer his companion. A little later the old man looked up the clerk and apologized, explaining that the man who wanted to know how to get out of the building was his client and that he did not want him to get the idea that he could receive free advice. "If he gets that notion," said the old practitioner, "I'll lose him as a client."

The Collector.

The late Edwin A. Abbey had no sympathy with those American millionaires who pay $400,000 or $500,000 for a doubtful Rembrandt or an imputed Fragonard, while painters of genius in their own towns are starving for lack of orders.

Mr. Abbey, at a dinner at his London residence in Tite street, said last year, apropos of the purchase by a New Yorker of a doubtful Titian at an inflated price:

"This type of man knows nothing about art. A man of this type, when Whistler was not yet famous, wanted his wife's portrait done.

"How much will you charge me, Mr. Whistler," he said, "for a lifesize picture of the madam?"

"My price," said Whistler, "will be $2,500."

"The millionaire took up his hat and stick.

"Why," he snorted, turning to go, "you expect to be paid for your work as if you had been dead 400 or 500 years!"

Importance Recognized.

"Do you think that man fully appreciates the importance of the office to which we have elected him?" said one constituent.

"I guess he does," replied the other. "The first thing he did was to say it ought to command a larger salary."

TELEPHONE POLES OF CACTUS

Arizona Government Is Planning to Make Good Use of the Giant Saguaro.

Saguaro for telephone and telegraph poles is the latest idea and one that is to be tried out. It sounds plausible and it is believed that it will be more economical than the old style of poles. Its test is to come from Tucson.

The government is to build a telephone system for the forestry service of the Coronado forest reserve. The first of these lines to be built out of Tucson is to be used into the Catalinas, and it is there that the saguaro experiment is to be tried.

Where they can be found in what approaches alignment, so that the line will not have a zig-zag too much, the saguaro up in the cañons through which the line will pass are to be utilized for the purpose of attaching brackets to which the wires will be fastened. And so the secret is out.

Along the proposed line it is difficult to set poles, owing to the rocky nature of the country traversed. Not only is this the case, but it is difficult to get the poles up there in the hills to set, while the saguaros are right there in many instances, and while not at a uniform distance this is not considered important.

The Quickest Way to Rest.

Do you know how to rest? A very busy man I know takes 20 minutes every day to lie flat on his back on the floor to rest and relax. That is very good, but I have found an even better way, which is to lie flat on the floor with legs up to the knees resting on a chair. This changes the entire circulation, and is the quickest way to rest. Try it. When you lie down to rest at night, and the mind insists upon working, try to relax thoroughly. Turn the thought to the weight of your body; think your hands heavy; keep the thought on the weight of your hands until the nerves tingle as if the hands were going to sleep. If you can feel that tingling sensation you have shown the power of relaxation of the hands. Think different members of the body heavy, until you can let go every nerve as if the entire body were so much jelly ready to melt on the bed. This requires practice, but it pays richly. To rest the eyes and make them bright, while lying down have them bandaged with a soft black silk handkerchief. This was advice received from an eminent eye specialist. —Harper's Bazar

Stops Splashing.

Two small curved ribs within the spout of a new anti-splashing faucet prevent the water splashing as it issues, no matter what the pressure.

MOUNTAIN GOAT A NUISANCE

Annoy Alaskan Miners by Getting into Their Tunnels and Eating Their Location Stakes.

Miners in Mineral Gulch, Alaska, are having considerable trouble with mountain goats.

During stormy weather the goats crowd into the tunnels that are being driven on the claims well up on the mountains, and it is only by throwing a dynamite cartridge into the tunnels in the morning that they can be driven out and the contractors get in to go to work.

It is also stated that they are likely to be the cause of considerable litigation among mine owners next year, as they have destroyed a number of location stakes by eating them.

Owing to the fact that alder and willow comprise the only wood in the gulch, nearly all the location stakes are of these woods, which, in the absence of other food, the goats attack eagerly.

A great many of the animals have been killed by the men at work in the gulch, but the number seems to increase rather than diminish.

Read and Reflect.

If the reader, says the Providence Journal, after perusing the following description of the probable mode of the formation of the earth, given by an English scientific writer in a new volume, does not understand the process, he had better leave this "internal spherical vacuity," and go where bigger words are used: "A formal idea of the heaven and earth may be obtained by imagining the heaven as at first an effluvia generation from a monocentral point, occupying, or creating and occupying space; the earth, as the arrest or end of such generating action, with the gradual relaxation of central tension and abnegation of such center, the consequence being the formation of a huge internal spherical vacuity, termed in the Genetic record 'earth.'"

Chick's Curious Upbringing.

A little Andalusian chicken owned by a Kelso farmer has had a curious upbringing so far. A pigeon recently built its nest about fourteen feet from the ground at Floors Home farm, and on the nest being examined the bird was found to have hatched the Andalusian chicken, the chick's mother having apparently deposited the egg in the pigeon's nest. Then the chick was given to the bantam hen, which has taken to the young bird as if it had been its own.

Yes, Indeed.

It makes a whole lot of difference whether we say an opera singer's voice is heavenly or unearthly.

INTERESTING PLACES AND DRIVES POINTS WORTH VISITING

OCEAN BEACH—excellent beach north for 10 miles and seven miles to Mosquito Inlet and Government Lighthouse at Park. The beach is the most magnificent in the world.

BEED, KNOX & BEED ORANGE GROVE—18 miles, via Ormond, one of the largest groves in Volusia county and is well worth seeing; can be reached by motor on fairly good road; can also be reached by boat.

NUMBER NINE ORANGE GROVE—large grove, passed on the way to the Beed, Knox & Beed grove, is 12 miles from Daytona.

NEW SMYRNA—16 miles from Daytona, over an excellent hard surface road; this drive is said to be the prettiest in the state. At New Smyrna are the ruins of an ancient fort and other historical spots, left by the colony of Andrew Turnbull.

OLD SPANISH MISSION—2 miles west of New Smyrna, reached by motor over good road. This mission is without authentic history but by many it is contended that this is the church built by Columbus on his second voyage to America. The altar is still extant, but at a later date the building was used as a sugar mill.

SPANISH SUGAR MILL—2 miles west of Port Orange and about 8 miles from Daytona; the machinery is still in a good state of preservation, although the mill is presumed to have been built and operated by the early Spanish settlers.

GOVERNMENT LIGHTHOUSE—at Ponce Park, 12 miles from Daytona, is reached by boat or by motor on the ocean beach.

MAMMOTH TREE—4 miles from Daytona; an abnormally large tree; reached by motor over hard-surfaced road.

DELAND—25 miles from Daytona; the county seat of Volusia county and seat of John B. Stetson university; a very picturesque city; reached by motor over hard-surfaced road.

TOMOKA RIVER—The scenic stream of Florida; reached by excursion boats which leave Daytona daily and run to the navigable head of the stream, 26 miles from the city. Generally a number of alligators may be seen in their native haunts. This is a trip no tourist should miss.

DELEON SPRINGS, 28 miles from Daytona; mammoth spring that throws out thousands of gallons of water a minute; a delightful bathing pool, and picturesque scenery. Spring is situated in an old plantation. Reached by motor over good road; a nice trip for a picnic party.

OAK HILL—hamlet, 10 miles south of New Smyrna; several orange groves in the locality; reached by motor over hard-surfaced road.

ORMOND—six miles from Daytona; here is located the Ormond hotel and a pretty town; nearby are the ruins of Spanish sugar mills.

TURTLE MOUND—16 miles south of Daytona; reached by boat; a mammoth mound of oyster shells supposed to have been left by a prehistoric race of people. Pottery and other antiquities have been discovered in excavating the shell.

PORT ORANGE—an attractive town 6 miles south of Daytona, can be reached by motor over hard-surfaced road; or the trip one way may be made by the road and crossing the Halifax river on the Port Orange bridge, the return can be made on the ocean beach.

CLARENDON GOVERNMENT PARK—2 miles from Daytona, and immediately north of the Port Orange at Seaside, Fla. The park is now in good condition and the view of Clarendon State Park is a beautiful sight. The view of being the only spot of winter resort in the state.

GENERALLY, you may motor in any direction from Daytona and find places and objects of interest which your driver can explain to you; there are many by-roads through the sylvan vegetation that a visitor will greatly enjoy.

GUARDING AGAINST THE POLLUTED OYSTER

The agricultural experiment station at Washington is conducting intensive studies on "polluted" oysters. It has been found that oysters from the Chesapeake Bay are the most polluted. The station is working to develop methods to clean up the oysters and to prevent further pollution.

The agricultural department maintains at Washington a bacteriological laboratory where all sorts of "bugs" are discovered in all sorts of food. At this time of the year, when the oyster season is at its height, little is done in this place except to test oysters and the water in which they live to determine whether or not they contain typhoid germs. The photograph shows Dr. George Stiles, Chief of the laboratory, and his two assistants, Miss Ruth C. Greathouse and Miss Maude L. Mason.

YOUNG BEAVER'S DAY'S WORK

Record Made by One of the Animals in Regent's Park Gardens, London.A young beaver in Regent's Park gardens, London, was once placed at work upon a tree 12 feet long and 2 feet 6 inches thick just as the town clocks sounded the hour of noon. The beaver began by barking the tree a foot above the ground.That done he attacked the wood.
He worked hard, alternating his labor with dips in his bathing pond. He bathed and labored alternately until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when he ate his supper of bread and carrots and paddled about in his pond until half-past 5 o'clock.Ten minutes later, when only one inch of the tree's diameter remained intact, he bore upon his work and the tree fell. Before it fell the beaver ran as men run when they have fired a blast. Then as the tree lay on the ground he portioned it out mentally and again began to gnaw.He worked at intervals all night, cut the log into three parts, rolled two of the portions into the water and reserved the other third for his permanent shelter. The work done, he took a bath.—Harper's Weekly.

The Useful Verb "To Get."

There is no word, long or short, in the English language capable of performing so much labor in a clear, intelligible sense as the verb to get;
and here is an old-time specimen of its capabilities:"I got on horseback within ten minutes after I got your letter. When I got to Canterbury I got a chaise for town; but I got wet through before I got to Canterbury and I have got such a cold as I shall not be able to get rid of in a hurry. I got to the treasury about noon, but first of all I got shaved and dressed. I soon got into the secret of getting a memorial before the board, but I could not get an answer then; however, I got intelligence from the messenger that I should most likely get one the next morning. As soon as I got back to my inn I got my supper. When I got up in the morning I got my breakfast and then got myself dressed that I might get out in time to get an answer to my memorial. As soon as I got it I got into the first chaise and got to Canterbury by 3 o'clock, and about tea time I got home."

His Little Peculiarity.

"One o' de mos' curiosest things about a fool," said Uncle Eben, "is de way he'll holler and git mad if you don't let him show off his misfortune."

An Eye to Economy.

"Now, remember, Ikey, that vos a goot glass eye you've got. Always take it out and put it in your pocket when you ain't looking at noddings."

Her Decision

By BEATRICE STURDEVANT

When Farmer Merton died—his wife had been dead several years—his daughter Lucy was seventeen years old. Every one said what a pity it was that she didn't have a lover, so that she could be married and thus be provided for. She did have a lover, but he had gone away, no one knew nor cared where, for he was a ne'er-do-well, shiftless, worthless. But he was near Lucy's age and the only one who had made love to her. That he was her only lover is not remarkable, for she was still almost too young to have one.
Inexperienced as she was, her heart went out to him, and when he departed he took it with him.But Providence at the time Lucy was left an orphan raised up a friend to her.
Stephen Woodbridge, a neighbor, thirty-five years old, hired a woman to go into the Merton home and remain there with Lucy until she could form a plan for her future. Stephen did more than this. He had her father's farm appraised by several good men in the neighborhood and bought it at a larger price than the appraisement, but even with this help Lucy was left with nothing, because her father had died heavily in debt.What was the poor child to do? A friend of Stephen's said to him one day: "Why don't you marry her? You are alone in the world, and she needs to be provided for." A great joy at the mere suggestion welled up in Stephen's heart. "I'm too old for her," he replied. But though he knew this, he did not act upon it. He went to Lucy and told her that if she could be satisfied to be his wife her problem would be solved.Lucy had been thinking a great deal during her trouble about James Tucker, her lover, and wished he were there that he might help her. But he was not there, and she had no expectation of his coming. So she accepted Stephen Woodbridge's proposition.
Stephen had his doubts about the arrangement, realizing that she was barely out of childhood and fearing that she would not be happy with one who to her must seem an old man.
He deferred the wedding for some time, leaving Lucy and the woman he had provided for her in the house where she had always lived.It was nearly a year after her father's death before a day was set for the wedding. Stephen was very happy, for Lucy to all outward appearances seemed at least not averse to the marriage. Stephen provided funds for a wedding outfit and made improvements in his house preparatory to the reception of his bride.But a few days before the wedding all these plans were upset by the appearance of James Tucker. Finding his sweetheart about to marry another, he reproached her. The situation caused her such unhappiness that she could not help showing it. Stephen knew that Tucker had returned and was informed that he had been devoted to Lucy, his informant adding that it would be well for Stephen to look out for the younger man. This was said not only for Stephen's sake, but for Lucy's, since Tucker's worth-lessness was well known.But Woodbridge, far from looking out for Tucker, went to Lucy and told her that he was ready to give her up.
Lucy seemed much distressed, but made no reply. "If Jim has nothing with which to support you," added Stephen, "you have means of your own, for since I bought your farm a railroad has been projected to run close beside it, and it is now worth double what I paid you for it. That excess I will return to you."Still Lucy remained silent, and Stephen went on:"Everything having been provided for a wedding, it may as well take place—with a change of grooms. Un-less you wish it to the contrary I will give orders to that effect. If I don't hear from you during today I will consider my offer accepted."He left her in great perplexity. That afternoon Tucker came to see her to say goodby, he said. When he went away he had received permission to go to Woodbridge and tell him that his proposition to Lucy had been accepted.
It was a great blow to Woodbridge, but he bore up manfully and set about completing the arrangements for a wedding at which he was to have been the groom, but was now to be replaced by one whose age was more in keeping with that of the bride.The evening before the wedding was to take place Stephen sat down in his lonely house before a fireplace, threw on some logs and gave himself up to despendency. He had met with the disappointment of his life. At that same hour the next evening the girl who was to have been his was to be wedded to another.While he was sitting there Lucy was trying on the wedding dress that he had provided, to see that all was right.
She stood looking at her reflection in a mirror, but she was not thinking of her apparel. Suddenly a resolution came to her. Skimming down a staircase, she left the house and ten minutes later opened the door of the room where Stephen Woodbridge sat and, kneeling beside him, threw her arms about him.An hour later Lucy in her home was married to Stephen Woodbridge, after all, the man of her choice.
Her course may not have been admirable, but it was human. Moreover, it is to be remembered that she was half child, half woman.

Changed Her Mind.

A young couple had been courting for several years and the young man seemed to be in no hurry to marry.
Finally, one day, he said:

"Say, I canna marry thee."

"How's that?" asked she.

"I've changed my mind," said he.

"Well, I'll tell thee what we'll do," said she. "If folks know that it's thee as has given me up I shanna be able to get another chap; but if they think 've given thee up I can get all I want. So we'll have banns published and when the wedding day comes the parson will say to thee,"Wilt thou have this woman for thy wedded wife?" and thou must say, 'I will.' And when he says to me, 'Wilt thou have this man to be thy wedded husband?' I shall say, 'I winna.'"The day came, and when the minister asked the important question the man answered, "I will."

Then the parson said to the woman:

"Wilt thou have this man to be thy wedded husband?" and she said:

"I will."

"Why," said the young man furiously,

"you said you would say 'I winna.'"

"I know that," said the young woman, "but I've changed my mind since."—National Monthly.

A Cooking Feat in the Air.

To cook a potato pie at the top of a chimney three hundred feet high by means of the heat generated in the fires below would seem an impossible task, yet such a feat was on one imagination accomplished by John Faulkner, a famous Lancashire steeplescraper.The incident was the outcome of a wager between Faulkner and the proprietor of a Manchester gas works, who doubted John's statement regarding the excessive heat.A large iron kettle was fastened, and this, being filled with necessary ingredients—sixty-six pounds in weight —was hoisted to the summit of the huge chimney stack. Faulkner placed the receptacle on the outer and coolest side of the brickwork, but despite this, the contents were found to be thoroughly cooked in one hour and twenty minutes, or ten minutes less than the stipulated time.Faulkner won his wager and the pie, which, it is said, was slightly burned at the bottom, was afterwards distributed among the poor of the district.—Bystander.
